

Reasons why i need financial aid essay 250 words

I have difficulties that many students might not comprehend because I am the first person in my family to pursue higher education.

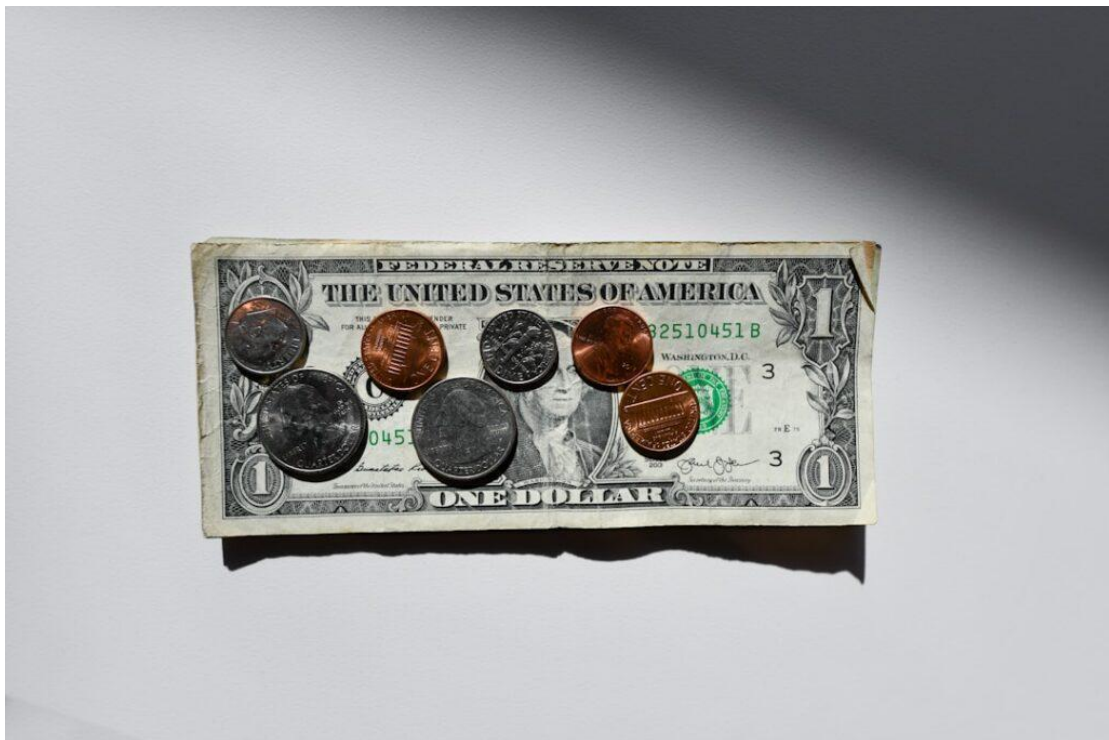

A distinct set of experiences including uncertainty financial strain and a strong sense of responsibility are associated with being a first-generation college student.

Even though I see this as a huge opportunity the cost of college tuition is too much to bear.

My parents cant afford to pay for my entire education even though they both have menial jobs.

Even though they try their hardest to help me our family cannot afford the expense of my higher education.

My academic path depends on financial aid. Without help I wouldnt be able to concentrate on my studies which are my top priority because of the stress of paying for college.

The financial burden would also make it more difficult for me to volunteer participate in community events and take advantage of leadership opportunities.

My professional and personal development depend on these experiences just as much as on my academic performance.

I could continue my education without worrying about how I'm going to pay for tuition or whether my family can support me if I were to get financial aid.

I could give my all to my studies and assume positions that would enable me to support my community.

My educational experience would be enhanced and I would be able to have a significant impact if I had the chance to volunteer and assume leadership roles.
